

Amended.
The editor was dreaming in his "den" when the door opened and a rather stern-visaged woman entered, without apology, says a writer in the Baltimore Sun.

"Will you kindly explain," she began, grimly, thrusting a newspaper clipping under the editor's nose, "why your reviewer refers to my recent book as a 'History of Female Suffrage by a new Historical Writer?'"
"Quite unparadiseable," said the editor, gravely. "Of course the word should be spelled with a 'y'."

BED-BOUND FOR MONTHS.

Hope Abandoned After Physicians' Consultation.

Mrs. Enos Shearer, Yew and Washington streets, Centralia, Wash., says: "For years I was weak and run down, could not sleep, my limbs swelled and the secretions were troublesome; pains were intense. I was fast in bed for four months. Three doctors said there was no cure for me, and I was given up to die. Being urged, I used Don's Kidney Pills. Soon I was better and in a few weeks was about the house, well and strong again."

Recognized His Act Once.
Among the many rebuffs received by solicitors for charity funds, that described in the following story from the New York Tribune illustrates a gentle wit which must have pleased almost as much as a generous contribution:

A clergyman in a small Western town entered the office of the local paper, and said to the editor:
"I am soliciting aid for a gentleman of refinement and intelligence who is in dire need of a little ready money, but who is far too proud to make his sufferings known."
"Why," exclaimed the editor, pushing back his chair, "I'm the only man in the village who answers that description. What is the gentleman's name?"

"I regret," said the minister, "that I am not at liberty to disclose it."
"Why, it must be I," said the editor. "It is I! It is I, surely! Heaven prosper you, parson, in your good work!"

Two Little Slips.

Admission slips to the hospitals are pretty likely to be matter-of-fact records and more or less tragic, but occasionally, the New York Sun reports, a bit of unconscious humor is found in them.

A slip at Gouverneur recently reported that a driver of a hansom had received his injuries by "falling off a perch," and the man's name was Bird.
Another Gouverneur slip announced that the patient was hurt by "falling off water wagon"—a fall, it might be added, which is always dangerous.

Real Enlightenment.

"One of those people who tell your character from your handwriting. That's right, Tommy; always ask pa anything you want to know."—Baltimore American.

When a heavy fall of snow occurs in Valdez, Alaska, the fire department is called out to clear the sidewalks.

Blind women are now employed as operators of private telephone switchboards and for taking dictation on shorthand typewriters—Popular Mechanics.

Maxim Gor'ky has written a new drama which is about to be published in a St. Petersburg magazine previous to a stage production. It is entitled "The Lowest of the Low," and is a tragedy of graft.

According to the Novoe Vremya of St. Petersburg, a Norwegian fisherman has fitted up a telephone apparatus on his boat which enables him to hear the fish approaching and even to make a guess at their number.

Compensation being refused for a cut finger, an Iford (Eng.) domestic servant left her situation and wrote to her mistress as follows: "Madam—, the cut is worst. The doctor says I have cut the spinal cord of my little finger. If you do not immediately send me 5 shillings a week, I shall insult my solicitor."

Study of weather charts is now general in the elementary schools of Hannover and Schleswig-Holstein with the object of making their value in agriculture better known. These charts are supplied by telegraph and post to all schools in Germany, but systematic instruction on meteorology is only gradually being introduced.

Jean de Reszke, the famous tenor, has severed his connection with the Paris Opera-house. De Reszke was ambitious for years to have a voice in the management of the opera-house, and was finally taken in, but after six months, with the title of singing director, during which time his advice was ignored and no authority given him, he resigned in disgust.

In some parts of Australia the horse is shod with leather, instead of iron, the feet receiving better support; but this novelty is employed only in regions where the ground is permanently covered with grass or fine sand. Though the leather shoe is more expensive than the iron shoe the higher price is repaid by the superior advantages. It is not impossible the innovation will soon extend to every country where the nature of the soil permits it to be used.—British Australian.

It is a disgrace and a shame that in a city like Los Angeles, populated by 200,000 educated Americans, the very name of the town live in and are proud of and have helped to make should be wife-beaten at their daily hands. Even if late, it is time now to make a crusade for the official promulgation which will be followed by every self-respecting person with the fear of God and the love of California before his eyes. And that's easy to set and easy to get: Locc Ang-el-ess.—Out West.

The announcement that the Hayward's Health Horticultural Society was prepared to pay a penny for every queen was brought to the summer show has caused the secretary to be inundated with wasps from all parts of England. Some of the senders have requested that the money they considered due them should be forwarded by return post. The secretary, however, wishes it to be understood by senders that only persons living within the radius of the show will be paid for their wasps.—London Standard.

"It is curious," remarked the grocer on the corner, "that there is no fruit in the world which people are such poor judges of as cantaloupes, and what is more curious is that they do their best to spoil them after they buy them. The first thing a woman does with a cantaloupe is to stick it into the ice box. Now, cantaloupes, like most of our fruit, are picked a trifle green, and when they come from the grocer's they should be put out in the sun for a while, turning them over every few hours, and then putting them into the ice box at night."—New York Sun.

White swans are being recently feeding the swans at the lake a pigeon alighted quite close to them and one of the boys attempted to capture it, but it flew off over the lake toward a swan and apparently was about to settle on its back. Instead of which it closed its wings quite naturally and dropped into the water close in front of the swan and commenced to struggle. The swan went to assist it, put its head under the water and lifted the drowning pigeon into the air. The latter then made almost a circuit of the lake, event ally resting on the island.—London Field.

"Five old Spanish emeralds" is a phrase which means something quite different from what it seems to imply. There never was an emerald mined in Spain, but after the conquest of Peru the conquerors brought some great quantities of loot, of which emeralds formed an important part. In this way the finest emeralds came into a possession of old Spanish families and as very few had been seen in Europe previously to that time, all the best stones soon became classed as fine old Spanish emeralds. To-day the expression still applies to the best emeralds of any source.

A letter written by Count Grzymala, who was an ardent admirer of Chopin, has just been made public in London by Edward Zelenka. In it the last moments of Chopin are thus referred to: "A few hours before he died he asked Mme. Potoka to sing some melodies by Rossini and Bellini, and this she did with sobs in her voice. Listening to her voice he passed away." Speaking of the funeral the writer says: "Mozart's requiem and his own funeral march were performed with the assistance of Lablache, Vardot and the concert society. It was characteristic of the times that the artists should have asked 2,000 francs for this last tribute to Chopin. One would have thought that pride would have kept them from selling their gifts on such an occasion."

What has become of the "seedless" apple?
Thirty low-headed apple trees are enough for an acre.

A money-making combination is the row and the sow. Give the latter warm skin milk.

One of the best medicines in the world for delicate women or men is work in the orchard.

Rake any leaf and twig and other rubbish from the ground beneath the grape vines and burn them. Don't wait. Bordeaux mixture is only good when on the trees. It doesn't amount to much on the shelf of the drug store or in our minds.

Dairying is a ready money business, and no other branch of live stock keeping can compare with it for enriching the farm.

Five hundred dollars invested in an orchard will bring better returns than $5,000 invested in the stock of freak fruit companies.

For strawberries plow under a crop of cow peas and then add from 1,200 to 1,500 pounds of ground bone and 200 pounds of potash per acre.

Pastures would last longer and produce more feed if stock were taken off occasionally, and the grass given an opportunity to get a fresh start.

The late, wet season has been pretty hard on young chicks and they will, therefore, require careful attention all summer to bring them through in good condition.

Three common faults in butter making are over-ripe cream, over-churning and over-working. The first means strong butter, the second and third soft butter.

Dairying implies a prosperous community of wide-awake, up-to-date farmers. All not belonging to latter class had better think twice before entering the field.

A Missouri farmer with fifteen feet of beard has recently been photographed. Thirty years ago he made a wager that if a certain man was not elected he would never touch a razor in his face and he lost.

One New York dairyman sells his milk for seven cents per quart the year round, and with good Jersey and Holstein cows his herd produces on an average of $15 worth of milk per month. It requires $5 pounds out of every 100 pounds to pay expenses.

To separate butter from the buttermilk I get a yard of cheesecloth, wet it in cold water and spread over the top of a crock. I then pour the buttermilk and butter into the cloth from the churn. Taking it up by the corners and working it back and forth easily I am soon able to drain out all of the buttermilk and have the butter ready to put into a crock and salt.

Profit on Hogs.

The cost of feed will largely determine the profit of hog-raising, and the feed got from pasture is the cheapest. Hog will stand much frost at each end of winter and will greatly lengthen the pasture season. If sowed early enough to get a good start before cold weather, bur clover or hairy vetch might be preferable, since either would be more nutritious and build up the red meat after the manner of wheat bran.—Progressive Farmer.

Animals Their Own Doctors.

"When you see pigs wallowing in the mud, or birds taking a dust bath, you should marvel," said a nature student, "for these creatures are then factoring themselves—they are getting rid of parasites."

"When a dog loses his appetite, he goes straight off and eats 'dog grass.' This brings him round at once. Cats, in like circumstances, go to 'cat grass.' Cows and sheep take certain medicinal herbs."

"Monkeys have been known to dress wounds with leaves. Latreille cut off an ant's antennae, and other ants came and covered the hurt parts with a healing fluid secreted in their mouths. It is even said that birds have been known to set their own broken legs."

"Certainly animals know all about fever. Fever-stricken, they bathe in cold water till the temperature falls again to normal. And an animal with a limb almost severed heroically completes the amputation with its teeth."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Planting Trees for Posts.

The rapid denuding of our forests and the consequent scarcity of timber for all purposes, especially the cheaper kinds in the rough for farm requirements, renders the planting of forest trees of great importance. There are few farms, especially on prairies, that have not several small pieces of land that are not easy of cultivation, which a little time and work will fit for the planting of trees, which should be set in rows about a foot apart, and cultivated as corn. Seedling trees can be purchased from the larger nurseries at from $3 to $5 per thousand, which is cheaper than the labor required to dig them in the timber lands if they could be gotten for nothing. It is a good plan to cut off the entire top of the young tree when setting out. This will give a good, strong, straight growth for the trunk of the future tree. A little pruning during the first and second summers will start the trees with good, clean trunks, and after this but little Laundryman—Quite right, sir. We laundered it before we lost it.

He Knew Him.

The jolly, good-natured Greek who drives his wagon round to the Benham two or three times a week, to supply them with fruit, is unknown to them by name, but answers cheerfully to whatever name they call him by, whether it be Socrates, Epaminondas, Themistocles, or any other.

"I suppose, Lysippus," said Mrs. Benham to him one day, "you are proud to be a contemporary of the illustrious Marco Bozzaris?"
"Who, men?" responded George—for that is the name by which he is usually known.

"Marco Bozzaris. You came from the same country, you know."
"Marco what?"
"Bozzaris. Don't you remember—"
"Oh, yeh," said George, his face lighting up. "He sell fruit over on other side river. But his name Marco Bozzaris. I know 'im."

Civilis Solitude.

But just as the citizen was about to have the man who had sandbagged him arrested, he was opportunely waited on by a committee of the Commercial Club.
"We have the welfare of our beautiful city much at heart," they observed, "I'm glad to hear that," replied the citizen, cordially. "So have I."
The committee cleared their throats.
"Of course the price of real estate is about the main element in the welfare of a city," they went on.
"Of course," the citizen assented, being something of a booster himself.
Here the committee, looking at him very hard, came to the point.
"We have the honor to inform you," quoth they, "that real estate made up into sandbags yields more profit and by that commands a higher price than real estate in any other form."
This naturally ended the matter. The citizen saw the point at once and was profuse in his thanks at being set right, while the committee went on their way rejoicing in the consciousness of a good thing done.—Puck.

ITCHING HUMOR ON BOY.

His Hands Were a Solid Mass, and Disease Spread All Over Body—Cured in 4 Days by Cuticura.

"One day we noticed that our little boy was all broken out with itching sores. We first noticed it on his little hands. His hands were not as bad then, and we didn't think anything serious would result. But the next day we heard of the Cuticura Remedies being so good for itching sores. By this time the disease had spread all over his body, and his hands were nothing but a solid mass of this itching disease. I purchased a box of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment, and that night I took the Cuticura Soap and lukewarm water and washed him well. Then I dried him and took the Cuticura Ointment and anointed him with it. I did this every evening and in four nights he was entirely cured. Mrs. Frank Donahue, 208 Fremont St., Kokomo, Ind., Sept. 16, 1907."

"I know it. And I've got so aggravated and tired watching the confounded hair leaking off day by day that I want to remove the rest of it at one sweep and have the agony over."

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Pepler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."
Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."
Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."
Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merit."

Dr. Norman M. Geer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "During the last twelve years I have frequently recommended your Castoria as one of the best preparations of the kind, being safe in the hands of parents and very effective in relieving children's disorders, while the ease with which such a pleasant preparation can be administered is a great advantage."
